[concluded FROM YESTERDAY.]
"And, indeed, I don't think it likely they will come."
Noel smiled. "They will come. The yier has made it known that he is to be here, and everybody likes to meet him. ibesides—don't look so disconsolate, little man-they will be curious to know what woman—they will be curious to know what whim has struck the Rashleighs now."

Gertrude did look disconsolate; there was no denying the fact. Again she heard the tapping of the high-heeied boots, and saw thise hard, pale eyes meeting her own in helr survey of her work; and she shuddered. No one had ever told her why Mrs. Have went out of church that morning. Gertrude herself suggested illness; but she knew, and George Chester knew, that among the many thoughts and Ideas conamong the many thoughts and Ideas con-nained in Mrs. Haye's strong-minded bon-net, illness did not figure. The storm had broken out, and the curate knew that the parish was like a beehive when a wasp has got into it. But what was to be done? George suggested that the decorations should be quietly taken down; and his stater, stung into callousness, said and his stater, stung into callousness, said it was no matter whether they came down or not; wished she had never seen them, wished she had never gone after those horrible mushrooms, or met Mr. Frankton, who directed her to the holly-bush. For, to her niter dismay and wretchedness, Gerrude conceived the idea that Noel was hopelessly angy with her. There was a change in his manner which she did not understand. He seemed to be so gravely understand. He seemed to be so gravely solicitous and tender over her, at a distance, as though she were under a ban, and he offied her. That he who did so shrink from servation of any kind, who was so singularly reticent and nervous, should be trought into such public bad odor, and through her means! This was the way she performed her wifely dules! This was be-

"It is all so very small and trivial," said George, "that I really think there must be unething else. Gertrude, something besides these decorations. The only objection have heard came from Mrs. Haye, and it is that the flowers distract her attention from her prayers."

"Distract!" broke out Gertrude. "If any one is distracted I should be. Tell her to take those red grapes out of her bonnet then. Why does she bring those to church to distract people? Who ever heard of red

But upon the proposal to remove the decorations the vicar quietly put his veto. Not they should remain up until the proper time for removing them. Let Mrs. Rasheigh be patient; he thought he saw a way out of the difficulty. And so after the decorations had been down almost long enough to be forgotten, and the ferment had sub-sided a little, the vicar opened his project sided a little, the vicar opened his project to Noel Rashielgh, whose co-operation he desired and obtained.

"I would willingly do this myself," concluded the vicar; "but it wiff come better from you, and be more likely to effect the desired end. You despise these trivialities, and dislike them; I cannot think it admirable that you should do so. Depend upon it, nothing tends so much to foster real kind feeling and good will as the interchange of eling and good will as the Interchange o these small civilities and courtesies of ordi-

And the project was successful. That is to say, Mr. Rashleigh was right as to the acceptance of the invitations. Many reasceptance of the invitations. Many reasons combined to render it improbable that any of those invited guests wou'd be defaulters; neither were they. The Lisles and the Franktons, the Sm.ths, the Richardsons, and the Joneses, the village doctor and his little sister, and last, but not least, Mrs. Rodington Haye. When that strange assembly sat down to his table, Noel, acting host by his own will and deed, knew that if the thoughts of all could be collected and brought to light, the wonderful medley would be strongly tinctured ful medley would be strongly tinctured with enunity towards himself and his wife

"My fault," thought Noel.

And as he gianced towards Gertrude, and saw the painful efforts she was making to keep down the nervous tremors that would rise up to threaten her, down went that sting again straight into his heart to worry

There was about the whole scene an element of anticipation, of which every one in his or her secret heart was con-scious, without understanding it; and to no one present was it more perceptible than to Gertrude, whose seat was anything but a seat of roses, in spite of the reassur-ing presence of the kludly vicar at her right

Ail at once-Gertrude could never tell the room itself, had become one giddy mass before her, and the vicar was making a speech. A portion of that speech will be sufficient to quote.

It was not the first time, he said, that it the said, that it is the said, was making a speech will be sufficient to quote.

self could not promise to help, for he had no taste; but he could look on and admire. A few words as to their host and hostess. He felt a sure hope that he was simply ex-pressing a general sentiment in offering to both the sincere and hearty congratulations of all present upon their marriage, a cor-dial welcome to Mrs. Noel Rashleigh, though they had made her, like a junior boy at his school, a fug on her first arrival; an earnest wish that, as a stranger coming amongst them, she would not find them wanting in that genial sympathy and kindly feeling which should draw all Christians, and especially fellow-parlshion-ers, closely together. He begged to propose the health of Mrs. Noel Rashleigh, his new parisitioner.

In the confusion of all that followed Gertude had a dim, amazing conscionsness of the enthusiasm with which this speech was received; of the re-actionary advances towards herself; of being made in this re-action a sort of herolne; of wantiers to are and being torrified less than parisitioner. ing to cry, and being terrified lest she should be unable to control herself; of a strange desire to do something great for the vicar; to go to Noel, ask him if he was angry now; but Noel was so busy amongst the gnests, so unlike himself, so talkative, that she could not help following him with her eyes, though it was impossible to get near him.

"I knew if auybody could make peace it would be the vlcar," whispered George.
"I never heard a better, more tactful speech in my life. I shail the reap the benefit of it as well as you."

Gertrade scarcely heard him. She could not realize the extent of the re-action which the vicar's speech had produced. Of course the hearers agreed with him. It was their place to take np a stranger just coming into the parish, and welcome her and—patronize her. They had not exactly done this; in fact, they had been rather hard npon her. But it was not too late, yet; they could nake up for it. on her. But it was not too late yet; they could make up for it. And really she was very pleasant, and so was Mr. Rashieigh; they could not help acknowledging that a little prejudice had been at work.

And the remainder of that day was like a perplexed dream to Gertrude. Her chief thought was Noel, and she could not even speak to him; she even fancied that he purposed to him.

She was conscious that all the conversatiou turned upon the new subject of church decorations; that enthusiasm about it had sprung up so suddenly as to be quite in-comprehensible to her; that she was ques-tioned; her books on decoration were brought out and borrowed; the pattern of her alphabet asked for. And everybody was so cordial that she wondered how she could ever have called them stiff. More wonderful than all, she gathered that In the projected Easter decorations Mrs. Rodington Haye was taking a prominent part; and a murmur in that lady's voice reached Ger-trude that ''she thought wreaths very pretty indeed, and crosses admissible; but when it came to flowers she was not so sure "-Even this was said in a mollified, yielding tone, which Gertrude had never heard from the poker woman before.

"Not angry with you," replied Noel, "but with myself. My poor little girl, I have been a bad, unkind husband to yon."

"No, no."
"Yes. Well, you can creep as close as yon like, and yon can put yonrhand on my month if you like. I shull only kiss it, and it won't stop me. Gertrude, shall we let bygones be bygones? I have thought a great deal since Christmas; and I see that I have been cruel and careless. Look here: That ugly door, which I dare say you hate—

I hope you do; you must lf you love me-"Don't be vexed. Neel: I do hate it." "That is satisfactory. Well then, that door is your natural enemy and mine. You shail keep the key, and let me have it for two hours daily. And you won't keep secrets from me again?"

"Never."
"We will begin afresh. The other day I was wishing I could turn back in reality; but you see bought experience is worth all the admonition in the world; and I understaud a speech of your aunt's now that I thought great nonsense when she made it."
"Ah, Aunt Jean. Now I may ask her to stay with us?" "As many Aunt Jeans as you like, pro-vided they don't interfere too much be-tween you and me."; It is a wonderfui thing, but I feel like a man who has been asleep and I'm sadly afraid the elements of jeal ousy are in me, and only want developing.'

"I like you to be jealous—about me."
"And, Gertrude"—

"Yes, Noei."

"Yes, Noei."

"We will have the pony-carriage. The only difference shall be that I will be driver instead of Joseph. Will that please you?"

"After ail," said Gertrude, "what a good thing it was that I didn't know the right time of year for mushrooms!"

coming amongst them until now, he had experienced from the whole body of his parishioners. His friends whom he saw around him would readily understand that this kind feeling and sympathy had smoothed many a difficulty in his path, and added its charm to many a duty which would have been but bare duty without it. He wished them all to know his grateful appreciation of their kindness, and his satisfaction in the consciousness that his ministrations had been happily unfetered by those sad parish discords which are so disheartening a stumbling-biock in the way of many a hard-worked ciergyman. He did not attempt to conceal that these heartfelt acknowledgements were but the prelude to a further favor which he

News of the Day.

The battle Sunday in the defenses at Petersburg seems to have been the most severe and decisive of the week's engageyere and decisive of the week's engagements. The rebels fought desperately, but were crusned by force of numbers. Our prisoners are between twenty-five and thirty thousand—so many that it is difficult to spare troops to guard them. Lincoln sends dispatches from the house of one Davis, in Richmond, and our entire army is preprint Lec's retreating columns. pursuing Lee's retreating columns toward Danville.

Our accounts of Saturday's fighting are now very complete. Sheridan's brilliant battle of the Five Forks is narrated on the fourth page, and embellished on the third by an experienced artist.

There landed in New York during the year 1864, 89,706 Irish, 57,572 Germans, 23,871 English, and 11,767 of other nationalities; making a total of 182,916 emigrants. This is 27,072 more than in 1863, 8,182 more than the aunual average since 1847, and 857 less than in 1857. Evidently the people of Europe do not believe that democracy is a failure. On the average, each emigrant failure. On the average, each emigrant adds one thousand dollars to the material wealth of the nation; but the average of the English and German portion is not less Enthuslasm.

The amiable and patriotic editor of the Democrat rejoicing over the magnificent and infinitely momeutous victories which have sealed the fate of the bogus Confederacy, kindles into this inspiring strain:

acy, kindles into this inspiring strain:

It seems from the dispatches pretty well authenticated that Richmond is taken at last. If this contest was conducted according to reasonable calculations of interest, this would be the end of the rebellion; for if they could not hold Richmond permanently, what place can they hold? Still we cannot foresee what desperate resolution may be acted upon, nor how long a scattered, desultory resistance may be kent up. Hold. desultory resistance may be kept up. Holding the country with one part punned to the other by the bayonet, is not restoring the Wisdom now, more than strength,

To such a high key of rapture is he carried by the fall of Richmond and the reduction of the rebel government to vagabandage and incipient death. This is all he has to say about it up to present writing.

ART ANECDOTE. One of those intimates whose secure footing allows them to mention the foibles of friends, remarked one day to Frith that "he didn't shine in conversation." "No," said the prosperous painter, "I'm like Addison in that respect; I've little ready cash in by pocket, but I can draw for thousands."

Victory Complete. All the details of the late movem which has resulted so gloriously for the national cause, indicate that the evacuation of Richmond was a precipitate flight instead of a deliberate and pre-arranged manouver. Immense quantities of Railroad stock were left in the city, and Gen. Grant telegraphs that the line of Lee's retreat is strewn with arms, artiliery, ammunition, caissons, wagons and what not. Something like 18,000 prisoners had been taken at last accounts, and still the good work was going briskly on. It is safe to say that the Confederacy is at an end. It is impossible for Gen. Lee to do anything more for it. He may keep up a fugitive, broken, disorganized army a few weeks or months ionger, and manage with it to kill a few people. But that is the utmost he can do. And if he has a tithe, of the intellect and manliness his friends claim for him, and his foes concede to him, he will surrender the cause and himself, if not his army. There seems to be a general anticipation that President Lincoin will speedily issue another and more comprehensive proclamation of amnesty. A good many weli-meaning people, together with a still greater number of iil-meaning ones, have been urging this for several weeks. Now, such a prociamation might be in order, although it could not have been before. We would have the offer of pardon generous and very ample, but we think it should include the announcement of a new policy in the treatment of those who remain incorrigible. Their occupation as belligerents now degenerates at once into mere highway robbery and murder. They have no longer the excuse of a pseudo-patriotism. Their cause is gone; their pretended nationality no longer exists. A peripatetic confederacy, a nationality that has no permanent foothold on the face of the earth, is a solecism,

Jeff Davis & Co. now constitute such an

Perhaps nothing is more paralyzing to the mental faculties than the shock of fear. or of painful news coming at a moment of intense exhileration. This law is strikingly illustrated in the editorial columns of yesterday's Democrat. About the time that the editor was attempting some response to our exposure of his sophistry and nonsense over the "Confiscation Act." the news of the fail of Richmond came. The effect on his article is visible to any one who wili take the pains to read it. We cannot undertake any elaborate rejoinder, for there is positively nothing to respond to. We will simply notice a point or two:

The Press points out a clause in the law giving the President power to dispense with its provisions entirely or in part, at his discretion.

We presume no jurist will hold that part of

If the editor will consult some "jurist" he will probably get a little information on this point. And if he paid any attention to current events he would know that a good many eminent jurists, Judges of United States Courts, have already decided this clause to be constitutional, and that thousands of rebels are receiving the benefit of its constitutionality.

The editor says "we haven't the law be fore us just now." This is credible. If he had said that the law had never been "be fore him," that would also have been credible. It might add somewhat to the clearness and instructiveness of his discussions on the subject, if he would give himself the troubie to get the law before him, and iabor diligently to get some little understanding

It was not to be expected that he would quote us accurately, or state any position of ours with candor or truthfulness. That is not his way. For example we, in speaking of the impossibility of any general infliction of the penalty of death for treason, stated that "before any penalty could be inflicted on the person, he must be tried." (We should have added, that he must be tried in the district where the offense was committed.) The Democrat represents us as saying that a "man can't be punished under the law without a trial." And adds that the law "does take a man's property without a trial." On his mis-statement of our position we need not dwell. The rest of the statement is equally incorrect. The law does not take a man's property without a trial of the case, if not the man. Natu raily enough in many cases the man himself will not be present at the trial instituted against his property, for he is eisewhere engaged in open rebeilion against the Government before whose courts the case is brought. There is nothing peculiar, in the law, in this respect. It provides that "proceedings in rem shali be instituted in the name of the United States, in any District in admirally or revenue cases.",

It is simply the customary method of proceeding against forfeited property, as, for instance in cases of smuggling. If the claimant has a mind to come forward and take his chances, he can defend himseif. He is notified in due form and ample time given him to answer and show cause why proceedings against him should be staid. That he does not appear in any given case is no fault of the Government or court. The execution of this law, in short, conforms in all essential particulars with the immemorial practice of admiralty courts.

Probably the editor of the Democrat never heard of this particular species of judicial proceedings. But it is as old as piracy, sinuggling and treason, and is in vogue in all nations sufficiently civilized to have courts at all. This ignorant critic talks about the act in question, as if it introduced an entirely new and altogether ferocious method of dealing with traitors. We showed in a former article that it contains, on the contrary, important and essential mitgations of our previous laws against treason. There is no civilized nation would attempt to subject whole armies and communities of men to judicial trial for the offense of treason.

The editor of the Democrat, as he stumbles ahead with his strictures, calis our comments "an apology for an act of legislation," and as we don't think it possesses very much efficiency, we have apology for it. Still, as this editor is afflicted with such a chronic duliness that it is difficult for him to extract the meaning from any given article, we will say for his benefit that what he mistook for apology, is morely axposition.

EDWARD MOLLENHAUTR, President of National Titalian Proceedings of pudicial in the such as a miscal processor.

from any given article, we will say for his benefit that what he mistook for apology, is merely exposition.

The ante-diluvian tendencies of the rebe citizens of Louisville were finely illustrated yesterday. There was amongst them a very general, profound, and apparently sincere incredulity over the news of the great victory at Richmond. Numbers of them actually entered into considerable bets that the reports were all a hoax! Nobody expected them to rejoice, but that they were such utter numb-skulls, was hardly to be supposed. They are the same set of "conservative" citizens who swallowed the Democratic rant last fall, that if Mr. Lincoln was re-elected gold would go up to five hundred per cent. premium before the 4th of March. We shall always be delighted to hear of their being caught just as they were yesterday and day before with their bets against the anthenticity of the news that everybody else was jubilant over, and just as they were previously with their gold operations. It furnishes another example of poetic justice whereof this war has been signally prolific. If there is one quality in these nome rebels which exceeds their impudence, it is their stupidity.

Like and Unlike.

The editor of the Democrat says in his Tuesday's issue: We didn't expect to find the anonymous scribbler for the Press in a good humor vesterday morning. There is some foundation in a general way for the insinuation that what the Democrat rejoices over is a subject of regret with us. He had a good time Sunday and Monday over the result of the city election. But his festive cheer was arrested as suddeniy as was that of Beishazzar when the news of the fail of Richmond arrived. The effect of that news upon both of us was in one sense similar. It mitigated most essentially the emotions produced by the city election in both cases. What is one man's meat is another's poison. But both meat organization. Let them be called upon to and poison can take away appetite.

DRAFT.

WAR DEPARTMENT, PROVOST MARSHAL General's Office, Washington, D. C., March 27, 1853.
Gireniar No. 9.—The 23d section of the Act approved March 3, 1865, provides as follows:
March 3, 1865, provides of a draft, and before the same shall inave taken place, cause to be mastered into the service of the United States, such number of recruits, and is shall stand to the credit of the present thus causing them to be mustered in, and shall be saken as substitutes for such pers ns, or so many of them as may be drafted, to the extent of the number of such recruits, and in the order designated by the principals at the time such recruits are thus as aforesaid mustered in.

I. In order to avail themselves of ithe provisions of this law, the attention of all persons desiring to form associations for recruiting, with a view to exemption from draft, is invited to the ollowing suggestions, to wit:

1. In order that credit may be siven to the sub-district for the recruits funished, at the time they are mustered in, and the draft made ouly for the ceficlency remaining after crediting rhese and other recruits, it is necessary that all the members of the association shall belong to the same sub-district.

2. Frevious to the commencement of the draft the asbe altered or increased after the drawing shall have commenced.

II. A list of the recrni a furnished by such association shall be kept by the Prevest Marshal, to be unmbered in the order in which they are enlisted.

When the draft has been made, the recruit atanding at the head of the list will be taken as the substinct of the first man drafted who belong to the association; the recruit standing second in the list will be taken as the substitute of the second man drafted, and so on nutil the list of recruit is exhausted by drafted men who belong to the association, or until all the members of the association who have been drafted are exempted, in case a sufficient number of recrnits have been furnished by the association to exempt that number.

Where the number or recruits furnished by an association are cased the number of men drafted from such association to exempt that number.

Where the number of men drafted from such association are cals in for the exemption of any persons whom-sever. DRY COODS.

WE WOULD CALL THE ATTENTION OF CAPI-JEFFERSON COUNTY, now offered for sale in order to raise a bonaty fond. Those bonds are better secured than any offered in the market. Jefferson county is one of the largest and wealthest counties in Kentucky, and is entirely free from debt. Its resources are: To meet its current expenses, a perception is annually levies. From this current expenses, a perception is annually levies. From this tax, which is more than sufficient to meet the annual expenses incurred, a find has been reslized which enables the county antherities to meet about sixty per cent. of these annual expenses he/me they become due, and without on meet these bones there is levied an annual tax (for twenty years) of fice costs on each shift worth of real estate of the county, and, in addition thereto, there is levied for twenty years an annual per capits the of free dollars on each white male subset to military duty. The value of the lands of the cannty on the lith day of Jannary, 1864, was $4,800,000. The whites of the county subject to military duty number 2,000. The taxes levied to meet hese bonds and the interest on them will produce an annual sund 514,243. The value of the lands will not decrease, nor will the rumber of thables. The number of londs authorized is but one hundred and fifty for an aggregate sum of $100,000. These bonds and the others to hand the percent, per county will be assumed by, free of licerament lot.

SUICIDE AT TAYLOR BARRACKS .- The young man, Augustus Doering, who committed suicide at Taylor Barracks Saturday night, was not insane, as was stated. He was suffering from a disease that was uot only a bodily, but to him a great mental afflictiou, from the nature of it. He had undergone a very painful surgical operatlon, and was told by the Surgeon that another was necessary, and that even then he would probably never entirely get well of the loathsome disease. Rather than undergo the second surgical operation, and probably urged to it by other circumstance, that have sluce come to light, he resolved on destroying himself, and carried out his desperate purpose Saturday night. About nine o'clock a pistol shot just outside of the quarters he and others occupied was heard, and upon some of his comrades going out to ascertain the cause ofit, they found Doering stretched upon the ground apparently dead. He lived till the next morning.

It seems the unfortunate young man was eugaged to be married to a young lady of this city some time soon. The terrible disease with which he was afflicted forbade the hope that he would be abie to fulfiii his engagement with his affianced bride, and this probably preyed upon his mind and urged him to commit the desperate deed of self-destruction. He belonged to the 58th New York volunteers. He was a young umong his companions.

MILITARY COMMISSION.-Hugh Harrod. charged with being a guerrilla, was tried before the Military Commission yesterday. He belonged, it is charged, to a band operatiug in Shelby and adjoining counties during last fali. He plead "not guilty." John R. Scott and Charles Fisk appeared as counsel for Harrod. The Victory on Sunday.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, April 2.—The most important victory the Army of the Potomac has ever gained in Virginia was won to-day, and the outer line of works which we have been trying in vain for months to overcome, has at fast yielded to our arms, and the greater portion of this army is within a mile and a half of the city on the south west side. The struggle made by the rebels to retain these works has been of the most desperate character, and for the success obtained to-day we are indebted not only to the strategy ex-ercised by the commanders, but to the overwhelming numbers and bravery of the roops that did the work.

The orders for an attack on the line East and South of Petersburg by the 6th and 9th corps were carried out punctually at day-light. The artillery having been hammer-ing away the greater part of the night along the entire line held by the above corps. Such furious cannonading has very seldom been heard during the war—not even surpassed by that which was heard on the occasion of the mine explosion in front of Petersburg.

The 9th corps engaged in the action were the 2d and 3d divisions and Col. Sam Harmon's brigade of the 1st division. The charges were made in front of Forts Hell and Rice, on the Jerusalem road, and were so far successful that by 8 A. M. we were in possession of their fortifications, Fort Mahone being the most elaborate and extensive. These works had fourteen guns, some of which were at once opened on the enemy by the men of the infantry regiments. Just inside and about one hundred yards from Fort Mahone was anothe work, to which the rebels retreated, and from where they threw a destructive fire upon our meu, causing them to retire from the end, when the rebeis made a dash, thinking to recover entirely, but the guns on the right, as well as the center, had been manned and shotted, and the assailants were driven back. From this time till late in the afternoon the struggle continued, the euemy using every effort to recover the fort, while our much were as determined to retain it. About moon the chances seemed that we should lose it, but a the brigades under Gen. Collis aud Gen. Benham, with General Shamlin's brigade of the sixth corps, came on the ground, and by their timely arrival saved the gal-iant useu in the fort from capture and again caused the rebels to retire. The fight which raged on this ground was of a most terrible and fearful character. At dark the position of the coutestants was the same as during the day.

Gen. Wilcox, with part of his division unade an attack ou the front of Fort Me-Lilvey, near the Appomattox, and took part of the line, but he soon after was forc ed to retire to his former position, owing to lack of support. The loss of the 9th corps will reach from 800 to 1,000, killed, wound ed and prisoners; among whom are Gen. Potter, commanding the 2d division, who is badly wounded in the groin, but not fatally. It is thought that Col. Letchell, of the 31st Maine, and Maj. Batton severely; Colonel Gregg, 17th N. Y., wounded; Major Morrison, 26th. Pag. lest a leg. Light Alexanders. Morrison, 25th Pa., lost a leg; Lieut. Alexander wounded; the latter were taken by the 111th Pa. The 6th corps struck the enemy's line in front of Fort Welch, near the celebrated lead works and carried them with very slight loss. They at once pushed for the South Side Road, which they reached about 9 o'clock, and in a very short time several miles of it were torn up and destroyed. They then moved on down to-wards Petersburg driving the rebels before them across the town on a run and into their works close to the city. They took a large number of prisoners—about 2,000 and some 20 guns. No attack upon the inner line has been made as yet, as the position is a strong one and will either be defended to the last or

During the night, the 24th corps, holding the line north of Hatcher's run and south of the Duncan road, connecting with the 6th corps on the right, and the 2d on the left, corps on the right, and the 2d on the left, advanced at daylight and took the works in their front with slight loss. Over 1,000 prisoners were captured there. The attack was made by Foster's and Turner's divisions, under Gen. Gibbons; they were supported by the colored division of the 2d corps who held the line from the Run a corps, who held the line from the Run a mile east of the Boydton road, over a mile west. They delayed till Sheridan, with the 5th corps got within supporting dis-tauce on the extreme left, when the entire line moved forward, carrying the worksalmost without opposition.

The enemy was found to have fallen back from this part of the line owing to the 6th corps cutting them off, they having reached the South Side railroad early in the morning and were busy tearing it up. This of course cut the rebel army in two, and the 2d division thus caught between the 6th and 2d corps at once started series, the and 2d corps, at once started across the South, railroad toward the Appoination, hoping to be able to ford it, and thus escape capture, but it appears they ran against Sheridan and putting on a bold front made a show to fight. News to this effect reaching headquarters, the 23 division of the 2d corps was at once sent to flank and if possible to capture the entire command. Our sible to capture the entire command. Our losses during the day canuot be given, but it is believed 2,000 will cover them. Many valuable officers are among the lost. Our captures will amount to about 9,000 men and 38 guns including those taken by Gen. Sheridan yesterday. The loss of the euemy is not estimated. They were mown down by hundreds at each effort to regain ground.

Gen. Ransom is badly wounded and a prisoner in our hands. He was found at a house on the Boydstown road, from which it was dangerous to move him.

The Battle of Five Forks.

An Allegorical and Rhetorical Descrip-tiou, Profusely and Superlatively Hius-trated, by the Ornamental Correspondent of the New York World.

New York, April 4.—The World has a graphic account of the battle of Five Forks, which was the turning point in the great conflict which, under Sheridan's generalhip, will take rank with anything on rec-

It appears that Grant was not satisfied with the days' business on Friday, and placed Sheridan at once in supreme command of the whole of Warren's corps and aii the cavalry. Sheridan maneuvered with his cavalry, dismounting a portion in front of the rebeis, and gradually pressed them back into their works, under the most desperate and terrible fighting of the war. While this was being done, and done closely, by order, General Sheridan set about forming the infantry, showing the same genlus in infantry tactics that he has in cavalry. It was a marvel to see so small a aii the cavalry. Sheridan maneuvered in cavalry. It was a marvel to see so small a force of cavalry press back and hold in check 16,000 rebel infantry, still they did it, and in such a manner as to completely hide the movement of our Infantry. They were drawn back step by step to their works; then the signal was given, and the infantry closed on the works like a huge barndoor.

Wilson Station, Va., March 4.—Hon.
E. M. Stanton: The army is pushing forward, in hopes of overtaking or dispersing the remainder of Lee's army.
Sheridan's cavalry and the 5th corps are between this and the Appomattox.
Gen. Mead, and the 2d and 6th corps are following on a line with the Southside railroad. All of the enemy that retains anything like an organization have gone north of the Appomattox, and apparently in the direction of Lynchburg.
Their losses have been very heavy.

Their losses have been very heavy.

The houses throughout the country are nearly all used as hospitals for the wounded and injured. Every deserter I hear of says the rebel soldiers are rushing for their homes, some in large and some in small numbers, and generally without arms.
Our cavalry pursued so closely that the enemy has probably been forced to destroy a great part of their transports, caisous, and munitions of war. The number of prisouers captured yesterday exceeds two thousaud. From the 28th of March to the present time our loss in killed, wounded, and captured wi probably reach about 7000, of whom fro 1500 to 2000 were captured and many be siightly wounded. I shall continue the pursuit as long as there appears to be any use of it.

No mails for civilians will be delivered unless addressed to the care of some officer officer to whom they are personally known. A Serious Rald by Thirty Rebeis.

The Tribune's Goldsboro correspondent of the 30th says the first serious attempt at raiding around our lines since our occuputen, was made by about thirty of Hampton's cavalry on the right and certer. Our line extends uorth from Moseby Hall, a distance of eight miles. A party of 100 mounted meu belouging to Kiipatrick's cavalry had been out on a scouting and to raging expedition, when they fell in with a cavary had been out on a scouting and to raging expedition, when they feil in with a party of Hampton's cavalry, who attacked them, and a sharp skirmish followed, our men fighting and falling back. A squad of the 23d. Michigan arrived just in time to save our men, who were outnumbered three to one. They checked the rebel cavalry. One of our men killed, and one wounded.

We captured 2 prisoner, 2 or 3 killed and as many wounded. On the field a de-tail was seut out from the 2d brigade to bring in our own and the rebels wounded and to bury the dead.

Rumors and Opinions.

3 Lec and Johnston will be Crushed. New York, April 4.—The Herald, editorially, thinks Lee's retreat will prove a rout. It says Lee will endeavor to cross Grant's line in order to join Johnston, who, of course, will retreat toward a certain point on Lee's line to facilitate a junction. From all appearances up utter destruction of the ail appearances an utter destruction of the forces under Lee and Johnston is plain within a short time between Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, leaving Thomas out of

SATURDAY'S PIGHTING-THE ATTACK ON PETERSBURG-SHERIDAN ON THE SOUTH-SIDE RAILROAD.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Of Saturdays's operations, the Tribune's correspondent says: At 7 A. M., the 5th corps was again in motion, passing to the left along White Oak road to join Sheridan in executing the difficult movement of marching by flank in presence of the enemy, withdrawing divisions in the rear of each other, and marching them off successfully from right to left. The left division, Crawford's, executed the same movement by brigade. While the same movement by brigade. While this was taking place the 2d corps moved toward White Oak road by a more direct divisions, passing around the left of the whole army, went through Dlawiddie Court House, and toward the Southside rallroad, with his usual rapidity. The force which drove Crawford and Ayers across. Gravelly run, however, at once turned their attention to him.

Moving rapidly to the right, and after a desperate conflict, he was also forced back within a mile of Dinwiddie C. H., but be-ing joined by Warren's corps he againtook the offensive, and in turn drove the enemy, and captured a position known as Five Forks, together with about 4,000 prisoners Forks, together with about 4,000 prisoners and several batteries of artillery.

He was then joined by Miles' division of the 2d corps, and pushed westward for the Southside railroad. This he soon reached and took position on it. The 5th corps, supporting the cavairy, took 15 guns and about 2,000 prisoners, enabling Sheridan to drive back the force which on Friday checked his advance near Dinwiddie Court

On receiving this news it was determined to give the euemy no time to send troops to their right, and at once a simultaneous at-tack was ordered all along the lines by the 9th, 6th, 24th, 8th and 2d corps.

An order was given about alue o'clock at night, and in less than an hour a furious assault begun on the rebel intrenchments iu front of their several commands, resulting la the enemy being driven in confusion from their first into their second line of works, with the loss of over 5,000 prisoners, several forts, and about 20 pieces of artillery.

The 2d corps were engaged all day in their front, and, in spite of the terrible fire of musketry poured into their ranks behind their works, succeeded in maintaining their new line, several hundred yards ln advance of the line they occupied in the morn-ing. The 24th corps occupied the center of our line, its left convecting with the 2d at Hatcher's Run, and its right going to the left of the 6th corps.

Before daylight on Sunday morning, the rebels made a furious assault on the posi-tion of this line, driving a portion of the 3d brigade from their breastworks, and capturing about one hundred. Their success, however, did not last long. The 20th Pennbowever, and not last long. The zone rean-sylvania, by a gallant charge, drove theur back beyond their lirst battle line. A sharp fire was kept up all day by both sides. Owing to the hot fire of our sharpshooters, the enemy was unable to work his guns; consequently very few casualties occurred to our side from shells. Our batteries, however, rained en incessant fire in to their intrenchments.

There was little fighting on account of the 2d corps, while sharp artillery practice was heard far to the right, and again the crash of battle sped from end to end of the lines.

SYMPTOMS.

The Symtoms of Catarrh are at first very slight. Per sons find they have a cold, then they have frequent attacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of tempera-ture. In this condition, the nase may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and acrid, afterward thick and adhesive

As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are in creased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The se-cretions are offensive, causing a bad breath; the voice thick and nasal: the eyes are weak; the sense of smell is lessened or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place.

Another common and important symptom of Catarrh is that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a thick or silmy muceus, which has fallen from the head during the night. When this takes place the person may be sure that his disease is on its way to the lange, and should I so no time in arresting it.

The above are but few of the many Catarrhal symptoms. Write for our pamphlet describing fully all symptoms; It will be sent FREE to any address.
